Slime Cities

An Open Wide exhibition at Birmingham Dental Hospital

16 Jan – 16 April 2018

Slime cities brings together artist in residence Elin Thomas and scientist Sarah Kuehne with artist/scientist Sabine Töttemeyer and classes 3E and 3F from Baskerville School to explore and celebrate bacteria and biofilms. On display are textile creations of the ever present microbes in our mouths.

This art-science exhibition takes place in the Foyer of the Birmingham Dental Hospital and School of Dentistry, 5 Mill Pool Way, Edgbaston, B5 7SA.

Open Wide is a programme of thematic exhibitions in response to the research undertaken at Birmingham Dental Hospital. For more information and associated events visit the website.

Opening 16th January 2018 (5-6pm) in the Foyer of the Birmingham Dental Hospital and School of Dentistry. All welcome, refreshments available, FREE.

Open workshops in conjunction with the Arts & Science Festival, on every lunchtime 12-2pm from 12-16th March with a chance to talk with the researchers involved in the project. Join Sarah to make a microbe using felt to add into the exhibition. All welcome, FREE.
